

The value at point R is less than the value at point P.