

The value at point P is greater than the value at point S.