

When isolating the variable in the first inequality, you may have forgotten that a negative divided by a negative is a positive. Also, you did not reverse the inequality symbol after dividing by a negative number. You also changed the direction in the second inequality when you should not have.