

You may have switched the values of x and y when you were substituting into the expression. You also may have evaluated the first term incorrectly. You need to apply the exponent and then multiply, not the other way around.