

In a direct relationship, as one variable increases, the other one also increases. In this equation, as x increases, y decreases. This is an inverse variation.