

If this were a direct variation, there would be only two variables, and as one increased, so would the other.