This expression, though simplified corrrectly, is not in simplest form. Simplify the second radical by using $\sqrt[4]{ab} = \sqrt[4]{a} \cdot \sqrt[4]{b}$. You should end up with the same radicands, which means that you have like terms. Then you can combine them just as you would combine $2a + 3a$.