

You probably squared both sides, simplified, and correctly solved the resulting quadratic equation. However, you must go back to the original equation and check your answers. One of them will produce a false statement, so it is an extraneous solution.