

You mixed up the input and the output. The number of cars made is the input of the function. The number of wheels used is the output.