

You chose only values for the domain and range that were listed as examples in the problem, but both the domain and range continue beyond those values. Olivia has as many as 28 wheels, and can therefore make more than 3 cars. You must include all possible input and output values in the domain and range.