

You may be unsure of the definition of the domain and range of a function. The domain of a function is the set of input values. Olivia doesn't make fractions of cars, so the only possible inputs are positive integers. The range of a function is the set of output values. The only possible outputs are multiples of 4.