

The vertical red line intersects the graph at two points. According to the vertical line test, this shows that the graph does not represent a function.