

Incorrect. Make a table of values including 0, positive values, and negative values. Evaluate the function for each value of x , and record the output, $f(x)$. Each row in your table of values forms an ordered pair. Plot the points. Connect the points in a straight line.