

The coefficient of x^2 in this function is an odd number, but whether a is odd or even has no effect on the direction in which the graph opens. It is whether a is positive or negative that determines if the graph will open up or down. The correct answer is: Up, because a (the coefficient of x^2) is positive.