

Entering the value 0 in the table will create a set of ordered pairs in which each input has only one output. This relation is a function.