Entering the value -6 in the table will create a relation in which the input -6 has two outputs: -8 and 2. Because there is an input with more than one output, this relation is not a function. The correct answer is 0.