

You may have thought that this relation is a function because each output has only one input. However, a relation is a function if each input has only one output. Because the input -5 in this set of ordered pairs has numerous outputs, the relation is not a function.