

You may be unsure of the definition of the domain and range of a function. The domain of a function is the set of input values. Anthony doesn't make fractions of gallons, so the only possible inputs are positive integers. The range of a function is the set of output values. The only possible outputs are multiples of 6.