If a chemical compound's half-life is 8 hours and a scientist currently has 120 milliliters of the compound, how many milliliters of the compound will be left after 1 day (24 hours)?

Use the formula: $R = A\left(\dfrac{1}{2}\right)^{\frac{t}{h}}$