

You chose the least value of the data set, but you need to subtract this value from the greatest value of the data set to find the range.