

You can use a calculator to create a table of values to check if this statement is true or false. Because $y = e^x$, as x increases, the output y will increase. This is the same as saying that as x increases, $f(x)$ will increase. In other words, as the input increases, the graph goes up.