

It appears you misread the graph and found the last increase instead of finding the greatest decrease. How high each point is above the day of the week shows the balance of Sandra's checking account, according to the numbers on the vertical axis.