The developer wants to compare the percentages of people giving the different responses. A circle graph is best for comparing when you have several categories and want to show parts to the whole, or percentages.