

A line graph is best used to show continuous data or some type of change over time. The input and output in a line graph would both be numbers. In this problem, the input is a category and the output is a number.