There are several misleading features of this graph: first, the categories of Yes and Probably Yes were combined, while No and Probably No were not; second, the undecided category was omitted; and third, there are no labels on the vertical axis (and it was not started at 0), distorting the relative sizes of these categories. So this is the most misleading graph.