You may have chosen this answer because there are 5 pretzels. However, 5 is the number of outcomes for the event. To find the probability, you should take this number and divide it by the total number of outcomes in the sample space (number of ways to choose anything).