

When calculating the midrange price of the data set, you added the first and last prices listed in the table and divided by two instead of adding the least and greatest prices in the data set and dividing by two.