A line graph is best used to show continuous data, such as the change in some amount over the course of time. It does not show the data broken into numerical groups, so it is not good for the purpose of showing the range of ages of the students and the age group most represented among the students.