

You can compare as few as two categories in a bar graph, so the number of categories does not make the graph misleading. There might be other players who have made more free throws than Lewis, but Lewis has made more free throws than the three players shown in the graph.