

Beginning the scale of the  $y$ -axis on a number other than 0 will change the appearance of the data. For example, numbers between 1,000 and 1,100 are relatively close in size. But if the scale on the  $y$ -axis goes from 1,000 to 1,100, the differences will look large.