

The bars of a bar graph show the number of items in each category represented by the graph. The height, not the color, of the bar is important in showing this information, so using different colors would not be misleading.