

You may have chosen this answer because you were considering two possible colors out of four. However, the probability is the number of ways to get green or red divided by the total number of possible results on the spinner.