

The two triangles have the same angles and the same side lengths, so they are congruent. The fact that they have the same angles tells you that they are similar.