

The sides of similar triangles are proportional, so the ratios of corresponding sides are equal. Corresponding sides will be located opposite corresponding (congruent) angles. For example, the measure of $\angle F$ equals the measure of $\angle C$, so DE corresponds to AB , and these two lengths are used in the first ratio.