

The perimeter consists of the four semicircles. The length of two semicircles equals the circumference of one whole circle. So four semicircles give you two circles. Thus, the perimeter equals twice the circumference of one circle. The diameter of the circle equals 4 cm, as seen in the diagram.