

It appears that you added the length and the width. To find the area, you either need to multiply the length and the width or count the number of squares.