It is the ratio between the side lengths, and not the difference between them, that is important in determining if triangles are similar.

The correct answer is $\triangle ABC \sim \triangle DEF$ because: $\dfrac{4}{6} = \dfrac{5}{7.5} = \dfrac{6}{9}$.