

An obtuse angle is an angle whose measure is between 90° and 180° . One of the angles could be obtuse. However, this question does not concern the properties of the individual angles, but rather the relationship between the two angles.