

The single angle that results from putting two angles whose sum is 90° together is a right angle. This question is looking for a word that describes the relationship between the two angles.